A - WORTH - WHILE - TALK!

By FRANCIS B. PURDIE, Friday, July 8, at One

DEAR BRAZIL NUTS:—

Not long ago we had a Rotary Forum. Tom suggested this and Bill suggested that. Francis B. Purdie thought we ought to have more "worth while talks." We're going to have one Friday; Francis is going to do the talking. Last November he packed his carpet bag, told the office boy to look after R. G. Dun & Company's customers, bought a ticket on the Fleming-Risley railroad and hied away for South America where he wandered for six months 'midst the tropical foliage while we stayed home, shoveled snow and attended Rotary.

The last time we went with Francis he took us to the moon; Friday we're going to Brazil. Of course being an astronomer Francis doesn't pretend to know much about business but I'm mighty sure you'll miss one of the most interesting talks of the year if you're not there Friday. Although Francis journeyed to Brazil and to the Argentine we probably will not get much further than the coffee country, particularly if he tries to elucidate Bill Furlong's Country Club explanation of how Royal Dutch beans grow. Jim Glenn is preparing slides so there'll be something more than a word picture. Francis is a keen observer, has traveled far and wide, knows conditions and how to tell about them. Next Friday at One.

Yours in the tropics,

JACK, Secretary.
